

Pythian Diabetes Research Assoc. Goes to Cyclone Game

July 31, 2010

The Knights of Pythias Diabetes Research Association attended a Brooklyn Cyclone's game at MCU Stadium on July 31, 2010 to raise funds to help support research to find a cure to Diabetes

Over 400 Knights and friends attended the Saturday night baseball game to watch the Brooklyn Cyclones beat the Staten Island Yankees 3-1.

The Cyclones won their fifth straight game behind a strong pitching performance, beating Staten Island in front of 9,293 fans.

Just prior to the game, our own Brothers, Robert Kaufman and Barry Wiener each got to throw out first pitches. The almost capacity crowd was treated to a great game and a fireworks display afterwards.

Throughout the game, the Knights manned tables to raise money and raffled off a signed Jersey, 2 signed balls, a team signed hat and a cyclones gift package donated by the Cyclones.

The event raised over $5,000 to be donated to Diabetes Research in the fight to find a cure.

It was certainly a fun night for all who attended.
